

Stockport school children commemorated
D-Day Campaign as they met World War 2 Veterans on Thursday 20th June

Stockport Town Hall from 2.00 - 4.00

On Thursday 20th June Stockport MBC held an event to launch competitions for schools as part of Stockport Normandy Veterans Legacy.

In preparation and research for the competitions, teachers and pupils had the opportunity to talk to WW2 veterans and civilians gathered at Stockport Town Hall.

They were able to access augmented reality of veterans' portraits through iPhones; look at displays of work produced by a pilot group of schools and examine WW2 memorabilia which included (among others) a German helmet taken from Juno Beach during the invasion; an authentic clicker; a kit bag; original military caps and a British battledress.

They were joined by young sporting role models including Stockport County footballers and Stockport Metro swimmers.

Why are we having the competitions?

Stockport Normandy Veterans were formed 30 years ago with over 300 active members.

They undertook a range of community activities, but the thing that they valued most was going into schools to tell their individual accounts of the most significant land, sea & air invasion in history. They were always aware that they were individuals who took part in something epic.

As we are commemorating the 75th Anniversary the inevitable loss of members has meant that the remaining few are keen to establish a legacy for future generations so that their stories and the sacrifice made by so many can live on.

That is why there are two competitions:

1. For primary school pupils. Based on Remembrance Day, this involves pupils undertaking extensive relevant activities relating to WW2 (such as model-making, art work, creative writing) along with pupils' writing about the likely experiences of local people involved in the Second World War.

2. For secondary Year 9 History pupils. Pupils are required to investigate, analyse and write an essay about local history and its link with World War 2. The aim is to encourage and produce the historians of the future as well as engaging with issues of local interest.

These competitions have been supported by Education Advisers at Stockport MBC who arranged for a high-profile launch at Stockport Town Hall from 2.00 - 4.00 pm on June 20th.
